Communication on tour -

All vehicles should have a two way radio. Some vehicles radios will be better at longer ranges than others but ordinarily, most people wont know their own radios capabilities until they meet a situation with a tagalong group. While we do deliver information & updates across the two way radio, don't worry if you don't get all the info. Arm yourself with a list of questions for our stops & the lead guide will also take opportunity to discuss & explain further information at these times, often pulling up to explain. Chit chat, banter & jokes are all welcome, just be mindful of your use of the radio in a convoy situation. Anyone with a particularly weak radio who would feel more confident up toward the front is welcome to do so – simply inform the guide.

Sticking together –

With a guide up front, its not always possible to see what is happening down the back. We keep amodest pace & the idea is that the group also maintains a safe & reasonable speed to travel together. Ideally you want to stick out of the harshest of dust, so some spacing between vehicles is important in some situations, like that of the Gibb River Road. We a huge believers in HEADLIGHTS ON at all times – being seen by others could mean the difference between a great holiday & one that’s unfortgettable for the wrong reasons.

As a rule, don’t move around a corner until you can see the vehicle behind you in the convoy – this helps keep us all together. We also like to be able to maintain radio comms with “Tail end Charlie” which is whomever finds themselves at the back of the convoy.

Whats the plan again?

Sometimes there is a lot of information to take in, not to mention the view so Its understandable if you forget some of what you are in for. We will be taking the time to have morning meet up’s & usually around the fire each night we will cover off what is in store for the following day – not to mention discussing the days events.

How is a Tagalong different to a bus tour?

Tagalongs are less intrusive, allowing you the chance to enjoy more personal space with your own vehicle & sharing in the experience with a small group of other like minded people. Your guide is there as a support to keep the tour, guests & trip plan moving along nicely & will need to focus on the group as a whole while delivering the tour program.

Firewood , whats the go?

On most trips where we are able to collect, it is appreciated if all guests can pitch in to help source, stack or load some timbers. This can easily alternate amongst the group throughout the trip. Some vehicles will be more suitable for carrying timber. Gloves are a great idea.

Medical issues , what happens?

Our trip leaders have first aid training and supplies onboard. Please alert us to any medical incident, or if you feel ill so we can coordinate what response is necessary. While we know some people can act tough in the face of pain, please remember it can come back to bite – so we urge you to come forward with any medical issue before it has the chance to manifest.

We hope this gives you a bit more of an idea on an Explore WA 4wd Adventure. Some of our adventures are run in conjunction with Kimberley Dreaming. As small business owners, Ben & Sally + us here at Explore WA are truly passionate about sharing the WA bush in a way that's lost on the bigger adventure charters. We hope you enjoy what's on show right across our offerings throughout Western Australia
